Dear s22

Please see below response cleared by Stephanie and John.

Thanks

Celeste

The Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet takes its statutory obligations under the Freedom of Information Act 1982 and the Public Interest Disclosure Act 2013 seriously. It would not be appropriate for the Department to comment publicly on specific cases under the FOI Act or the PID Act.

The Department processes FOI requests in accordance with its obligations under the FOI Act, the Guidelines issued under section 93A of the FOI Act, and internal Department resources such as the FOI Business Rules. As at the end of the third quarter of 2018-19 (year to date), approximately 93% of PM&C decisions were finalised within applicable statutory timeframes.

Subject: Media query: FOI complaint

Hi team,

I just had a query about a PID complaint made about the handling of FOI requests at PM&C.

Apologies for the late Friday email - I don't need a response until late Monday.

I have evidence suggesting the following:

- an anonymous PID complaint was made in late 2017.
- it alleged the department was breaching the FOI act in one of every two FOI applications it received. The main allegation of unlawfulness was that statutory timeframes were routinely being breached without reason. This had the effect of delaying FOIs until the information requested became redundant or outdated. It alleged this demonstrated a continual disregard for the rule of law. The complaint included 25 examples of FOIs that were said to have breached provisions of the FOI Act.
- the PID complaint also alleged that FOIs that were politically sensitive were more likely to be subject to this treatment.

- PM&C investigated the PID complaint and devoted significant time and effort to examining the concerns. The investigation found disclosable conduct in five cases, indicating unlawful conduct. The five cases included an FOI requesting Tony Abbott's expense entitlements as a former PM, which was delayed by four months without explanation, and then heavily redacted when it was eventually released. The investigation otherwise rejected allegations it was systematically breaching the law, had a disregard for the law, or was deliberately delaying the release of politically-sensitive material.

My questions are:

- what has since been done to ensure FOI complaints are handled in a way that does not breach the FOI act?
- what did the department do to investigate the PID complaint? does the department believe it has responded satisfactorily to address the disclosable conduct it found?
- does the department concede it treated five of the 25 FOI cases in a manner that breached FOI law?
- why did the department reject allegations that it was systematically breaching FOI law?
- has the department ever deliberately delayed the release of politically sensitive documents, as alleged? did it do so in regards to the FOI involving Tony Abbott and his former expenses?

I was hoping for a response by 4pm Monday.

Many thanks,
